

CFPA Hosts Vigil for A Peaceful Election

The Princeton-based Coalition for Peace Action (CFPA) is holding a Vigil for a Peaceful Election from 4:30-5:30 p.m. on Monday, November 4 — the eve of the November 5 election. The vigil will be at Tiger Park in the front of Palmer Square, across Nassau Street from Nassau Presbyterian Church, located at 61 Nassau Street.

Signs with the theme of the vigil will be available for attendees to hold during the first half hour, when it will still be daylight. The second part will turn into a candlelight vigil. Attendees are urged to bring their own candles. CFPA will provide a limited number of battery powered candles.

The purpose of the vigil is to express solidarity in opposition to any violence during Election Day or in the aftermath. The vigil will also express opposition to large acts of violence against a peaceful transfer of power like that of January 6, 2021.

The Rev. Robert Moore, executive director of CFPA, said "The most sacred right of American citizens is voting in our democratic elections. Many people of good will are deeply anxious about potential violence during the process and aftermath of this election. It is important to come together to be in solidarity against any such violence. There is no place for violence in any part of this election."
